

ABSTRACT

A burner suppliable with a mixture of air and fuel, comprising a burner body provided with a diffuser in which openings are made for the passage and subsequent combustion of said mixture, said diffuser is divided into a plurality of diffuser elements that are adjacent to one another, each diffuser element being at least partially free to dilate in at least one direction.